Truman Keeps Role as Onlooker; Visit to Mother Planned

Independence, Mo., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Prospects of an eleventh hour appeal to the nation's voters faded today as President Truman clung to his sideline role while his party organization fought the battle of ballots for Democratic control of congress in tomorrow's election.

With a speech now apparently definitely out of the picture, presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters an election eve statement by Truman, back home to vote, had not even been discussed.

Meanwhile, however, the president was on record for the second time in favor of exclusive United States trusteeship of captured Pacific island bases deemed vital to the country's security.

Speaking through secretary Ross, the president yesterday reaffirmed the Pacific base policy he enunciated at a news conference January 15.

Promised Petition

At that time, the president said that the United States would petition the United Nations for authority to conduct the sole trusteeship of the island bases within the U. N. framework as long as they are needed. The policy advocates U. N. collective trusteeship for bases not vital to American defense.

Truman arranged to visit Kansas City for lunch today in his penthouse apartment of the Hotel Muehlbach with his staff. Ross said he would talk there with a few visitors before driving to Grandview, Mo., for the third time to visit with his mother.

The mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, will go to the polls tomorrow, the president said, despite her 93 years.

Truman told reporters his mother had informed him yesterday she will vote "the straight Democratic ticket."

That would include Enos T. Axtell, the Democratic nominee for congress from the fifth district, who won the nomination from representative Roger Slaughter after a public endorsement from the White House.

Water Service O.K.

"Little difficulty is expected with respect to water service because of its revenue-producing character, but extension of sewers and provision of educational facilities may run into financial difficulties in some communities," the report predicted.

Financing arrangements "must be initiated at the earliest possible date if they are to be effective in 1947," Wyatt cautioned. The National Housing Agency meanwhile is taking steps, he said, to improve supplies of water and sewer pipes, utility poles and electric transformers, and is attempting to speed up the sale of such equipment from surplus military camps.

The housing report showed, for September, the first substantial monthly increase in new homes completed. The gain of 25 per cent over August was a "particularly encouraging" result, Wyatt said, of NHA's efforts to get thousands of homes finished which were standing in various stages of completion.

Death Claims Wife of Cowboy Roy Rogers

Los Angeles, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Death Sunday claimed 32-year-old Arlene Rogers, wife of Cowboy Actor Roy Rogers, a week after the birth by Caesarian operation of her third child, Roy, Jr.

The child, doctors said, is progressing satisfactorily.

Other children are daughters, Cheryl, six, adopted, and Linda Lou, three.

George Gets Haircut Upon His Graduation

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Graduation from elementary school in about two months promises to be a sad occasion for 13-year-old George Estrada, Jr., for it means he must have his hair cut.

"Once in a while a girl will get catty" about the tresses, George asserted, adding that his football and baseball playmates "don't bother me."

ability to solve critical issues of peace-making and peace-keeping.

The assembly, now operating through committees rather than in formal sessions, already was knee-deep in such problems as what to do about Franco Spain and how to handle vigorous small nation attacks on the veto system. Both these issues seemed certain to have high priorities on the assembly's 65-item agenda.

The assigned task of the foreign ministers is to put into final shape peace treaties for Italy, Finland, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria. These treaties, together with those eventually to be written for Germany and Japan, are designed to build out of the political wreckage of World war II the peace which the United Nations was organized to make permanent and secure.

Browns Dumped by Los Angeles

New York, Nov. 4—(AP)—The Cleveland Browns, who at one time appeared well on their way to an easy Western division victry in the All-America Football conference, find themselves leading their sector by only a single game today.

Winners of their first seven games, the Browns since have dropped two straight decisions, the latest to the Los Angeles Dons yesterday, 17-16, on a field goal in the final 20 seconds of play.

Consequently the Browns now lead the second place San Francisco 49ers whom they meet Sunday, by one game. The 49ers trounced Buffalo Saturday night.

The New York Yankees, Eastern division leaders, squeaked out a 24-21 decision over the last place Miami Seahawks, winning the game in the final 26 seconds when Ace Parker pitched a scoring pass to Jack Russell.

The Yanks now lead the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers, who topped the Chicago Rockets, 21-14, Saturday night, by 2½ games.

Rocket to Oust Plane For Ground Support

Washington, Nov. 4—(AP)—Use of rockets rather than airplanes in tactical support of ground troops is viewed by an army authority today as a possibilty in any future war.

Discussing developments in military rockets in the semi-official Field Artillery Journal, Col. Thomas B. Hedekin, asserted that the next few years will bring production of a greatly improved missile with a "medium" range up to 200 miles.

This projectile, he added, promises to become "a valuable supplement to the tactical air force, and even possibly a substitute".

Col. Hedekin, for the past year in charge of field artillery rocket tests at Fort Bragg, N. C., said that improved anti-aircraft defenses already threaten to make "prohibitively costly" the use of planes to support ground troops as in World War II.

He predicted that trans-oceanic guided missiles with atomic warheads "will not be available within the next few years, although they are an almost certain eventual development".

Rebels, Stags Win Cage Games

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Cleveland's highly touted Rebels, the pre-season favorites in the Basketball Association of America, showed real class in their first start.

With Frankie Baumholtz, the former Ohio university and Great Lakes navy star, dropping in 25 points, the Rebels smothered the Toronto Huskies 71-60, last night to delight a crowd of 7,594.

Although the Cleveland tilt was the only Sunday game in the new play-for-pay loop, four clubs made their home debut Saturday and Pittsburgh entertains Washington in tonight's only contest.

Chicago showed unexpected power Saturday in disposing of the New York Knickerbockers before 9,437 Chicago fans. Max Zaslofsky, former St. John's of Brooklyn ace, scored 18 points for the victorious Stags.

Washington spoiled the Detroit Falcons' home opener, smothering them under a 50-33 landslide.

Providence gained a 59-53 decision over Boston and St. Louis shaded Pittsburgh 56-51.

Army Cracks Down to End Manila Accidents

Manila, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The U. S. army today announced the assignment of 450 additional military police to the Manila area with instructions to reduce traffic accidents and enforce a ban against rowdyism and drunkenness—causes of Filipino complaints.

The army also announced the release of 154 properties it had been using. Filipinos have complained to the war department that army retention of property they contended no longer was needed hampered rehabilitation.

16 States Key for

what many observers have called a trend against the "ins," the Democrats have gone out after Republican-held senate places in Kentucky and California with what they contend are fair prospects of winning both.

These 15 states—along with Illinois which has no senatorial contest—promise to furnish most of the vital results in the hotly-contested races which GOP leaders assert will give them control of the house. The Democrats sharply dispute these victory claims.

In the house, the Republicans now have 192 members. They need to retain all of these or equivalent districts and gain 26 for the 218 which marks a clear majority. The Democrats, with 235 members, could lose a net of 17 and still maintain control. There are six vacancies and two minor parties now represented among the 435 house places.

Need Large Gain

In the senate, the Republicans must make a proportionately larger gain of 10, since they now hold only 39 of the 96 places. Democrats, with 56, could lose seven and keep their majority organization intact. Both parties are fighting for the seat of Senator Robert M. LaFollette (Prog-Wis), who was defeated in the Republican primary.

Ninety-seven candidates are in the field for 35 senate seats which will be filled in tomorrow's election.

There are 880 contestants for the 432 house seats at stake and 88 for the 33 governorships now held by 16 Democrats and 17 Republicans.

Maine already has returned Senator Owen Brewster (R) for another six-year term, kept its three house seats in the GOP column and re-elected Gov. Horace A. Hildreth (R).

Party leaders prepared to turn to the radio tonight to wind up a campaign that generally has been marked by skimpy crowds at political rallies and by outward apathy of the voters to candidates' appeals on formal issues.

Protest Vote to Decide

Most observers have calculated that the election will be settled by the size of what has been forecast as a protest vote against the Truman administration's handling of meat and other controls and general dissatisfaction with the progress of reconversion from war to peace.

Republicans have plugged this issue, along with accusing the Democrats of linking themselves with Communists and of permitting Henry A. Wallace, former Secretary of Commerce, to confuse the handling of foreign policy.

Although President Truman has remained silent, Democratic leaders have thrown back the communism charge at the Republicans, have contended their opponents are to blame for cracking price controls and have asserted that Republican domination of congress would hamper an early conclusion of a permanent peace.

Wallace told a political rally in New York last night that "the whole world will take it as a sign that we have become reactionary if the Republicans win."

In Chicago, however, Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio), said the Democratic and Republican parties stand "almost together" on foreign policy.

Sums Up Campaign

In a campaign sumup by radio last night, Rep. John J. Sparkman, chairman of the Democratic speakers' bureau, declared the Republicans are going to be surprised at the direction the "protest" vote takes.

"It will be a protest against the obstructionist record of Republicans in congress who did everything in their power to delay and hinder and sabotage the legislation which the vast majority of Americans wanted," Sparkman declared.

But Senator Alexander Wiley (R-Wis), asserted in a statement, that an expected heavy vote will show that "the people want to get rid of regimentation."

"The people want to get rid of the planning and socialistic economy imposed by the New Deal," Wiley added.

In statements written for the Associated Press;

Sparkman contended the Democrats will retain control of both houses of congress with 231 seats in the house and a "safe, if small, working majority in the senate."

Rep. Clarence J. Brown (Ohio), Republican campaign director, asserted the GOP would gain at least 40 house seats and probably would win senate control by a narrow margin.

Voter Gets Marked

ferred her to the Absentee Voters' bureau and the matter then was taken up with Republican national committee.

Carroll Reece, Republican national chairman, issued a statement yesterday saying that "if such practices exist which are manifestations of machine rule, those are some of the things that should be looked into by the appropriate authorities."

In Decatur, the story was called "ridiculous" by Macon County Clerk Laurence Tangney. A Democrat, he said he would ask for a federal investigation.

"RIDICULOUS," SAYS CLERK

Decatur, Ill., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Laurence Tangney, Macon county clerk, said last night he would ask for a federal investigation of what he termed a "ridiculous" story that an Illinois federal employe in Washington had received a premarked absentee ballot for Tuesday's election.

Carroll Reece, national Republican chairman, said in Washington he was told that the ballot was received by a woman from Decatur, whose name he did not know, and that he had advised the ballot be marked for the candidates of her choice on the assumption that it might thus be valid and counted.

"If such practices are manifestations of machine rule," Reece said, they "should be looked into by the appropriate authorities."

Howard Doyle, U. S. district attorney here, said he had telegraphed a request to Reece that the woman's name be made known to the FBI for "immediate use in an investigation."

"The marking of a ballot before its mailing * * * would be too stupid to be believable," Tangney said, adding that he had been confined to bed by a physician's orders since Oct. 19, but that absentee voting for the county was in charge of "three honest, efficient and competent employes."

Simple, But Appropriate

Five men stood together under a tree on the White House lawn. They were not famous men, as fame is usually defined. But as President Truman said in announcing their appointment to the Atomic Energy Commission, they had just been given "responsibilities as great a any men have ever assumed in peacetime."

Their first meeting was not in itself important or productive. If it is remembered at all, it will be for its indication of how completely they started from scratch These men were inheriting a tremendous task and with it tremendous properties and organizations. But at the first meeting they did not even have an office.

They were simply five men successful in their various endeavors and unselfishly conscious of their duties as citizens. To them the President had assigned responsibility for the use of materials, patents and processes which human minds had put together to harness the greatest power that man had ever controlled

The harnessing of that power began in the minds of men It grew into something expressed in billions of dollars, thousands of workers, thousands of victims killed in an unsuspected flash. It threatened to get out of hand and destroy its controllers. So the problem of controlling the controllers came back to the minds of men—in our country, to the minds of the five men standing under a tree.

Soon these men will be in surroundings considered more fitting to the importance of their work. They will have suites of offices and staffs of advisers and assistants. They will have eventual fame. They will also lead a life which partakes of the monastic and the Masonic, divorced from many personal associations and all acquisitive pursuits, pledged to closest secrecy until the mysteries can safely be revealed.

But it is probably well that the beginning was simple and humble. It was a forceful illustration that the threat of destruction must be averted by individual, mortal men, and that their only real equipment for the task lies within themselves.

Where, then, was there a better setting than out-of-doors beneath a tree? It was a setting inclined to put man in his proper perspective. It was also a setting inclined to put him in a hopeful frame of mind. For some of the world's wisest thinking and talking has been done in just such surroundings.

It is said that Socrates spent almost his entire life out-of-doors, going inside only to eat, sleep and probably—being a wise man—to keep out of the rain. Nor is he alone among the great philosophers who could dispense with classroom and desk and the great religious teachers who had no need of pulpits.

It is no different today. The power of good or evil is not inherent in the trappings of modern life. It does not reside in laboratories or machines, even in those whose products called the Atomic Energy Commission into being The salvation of civilization still rests with the wisdom, integrity, and courage of mortal minds, whatever their surroundings.

News behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Washington—The disarmament topic came up fast hot and big. Stalin prepared the way for it in his completely directed government radio and news advices and then his Molotov opened the subject in such a large manner at the UNA opening where he crowded such immediate vital questions as the election Tuesday back from the top headlines The topic itself was rather plainly advanced to cover a change of diplomatic tactics from the Paris conference to this one The Russians did not do very well at Paris or in the elections held recently in Berlin. They urgently needed a new line. The old bulldozing veto, threat and force tactics were not getting them anywhere excepting into a growing world unpopularity So they loosened up a mite, or rather a shade of a mite, in letting UNA discuss vetoism and came forward with the rather belligerently presented demand of Mr. Molotov that we outlaw our atomic bomb and otherwise curb our arms. So the whole realm of disarmament prospects was injected for a diplomatic strategic purpose into UNA, and drew a counter plan from the United States which went the idea one better.

Now you may study these plans and counter plans in detail for days but the only safe conclusion is that disarmament has become a topic—a topic especially among people who do not know much about armament or among authorities who know but are not saying much frankly.

The last time the United States disarmed was after World war I when we scrapped ships. Voluntarily we offered our keels and blueprints to the world and secured adoption of a 5-5-3 ratio among the big powers. We found out this did not prevent war. World war II was bigger and worse. Indeed our very disarmament treaties permitted Japan to build herself up to a war against us. So we must realize at the outset that disarmament does not necessarily mean peace; indeed such a treaty may be a vehicle of opportunity for war In short, while our people may be thinking in old terms of disarmament and peace, their hopeful hearts are ruling their memories, and peace might just as readily eventuate from armament—good forceful armament which is too strong for anyone to attack.

Hopeful Americans may say the administration arms expenditures are running too high. They were $13 2 billions as last reported. I also think this is too high. Air Corps leader General Spaatz has been writing magazine articles saying what you must have read in this spot much earlier, namely that the American frontier is now on the top of the world. One of our B-36s could carry 10 000 pounds of destructive agents (atom bombs) to Europe or Asia and return without refueling. He is speaking of modern armament even beyond the last war.

You can plainly see then that if armies and navies were cut finally by agreements now under discussion, peace might not eventuate Then why not cut the air force, you may ask Well, one of Stalin's government press announcements said he was not cutting his aviation or scientific wings any further—the two agencies of destruction most important to peace You might better say as the United States has peaceful intentions, why not keep our atomic bomb for use against anyone who would make war against us

Peace can never be static Today it rests on the science and air fronts. To consider it seriously you would not, like Stalin, talk through newspapers, or like Molotov belligerently present it as a sort of diplomatic weapon at a conference.

You can see all these factors of peace plainly in your daily lives. A man does not disarm himself, or throw away his fire hose (as Mr Roosevelt once put it) or even lend-lease it to a neighbor in hopes that the neighbor may do likewise To consider such things you would have to be rather sure of your neighbor first. Would you not first insist on knowing for sure your neighbor's state of mind whether his intentions were similar to yours?

World peace then hangs upon the state of the world as much as upon armaments. Plainly no thinking man can be sufficiently gullible to believe a state of mind has been established upon which disarmament can be built with any confidence. If Russia wants disarmament and peace it should first help establish the sound grounds for it, first contribute to a state of well being which has some authenticity and into which may safely be placed. That would lead to real disarmament. To establish such grounds will be a long, careful and tedious business—a genuinely serious business, and not at all like the diplomatic discussion which the United Nations assembly has been strategically hearing.

As Pegler Sees It

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright 1946, by King Features Syndicate Inc.)

New York—Under the heading "Alleged false front activities," Judge Walter C Lindley of the federal court, found that the A & P. grocery chain had formed artificial organizations in the guise of independent public groups, to promote the company's interests The grocery company argued that its own interests were the public's interests, inasmuch as it was admittedly driving down the cost of good, sanitary groceries to the consumer and was resisting state tax proposals which might have frustrated that purpose. Those who are naive enough to believe that the company put the public interest first and was pleasantly surprised to note that these movements could do A & P. no harm, have my permission.

This was the anti-trust case in which the court found the defendants guilty of illegal, though laudable operations, with the remark that to buy, sell and distribute to a substantial portion of 130 million people $1 750 million worth of food annually, at a profit of one and one-half per cent "is an achievement one well may be proud of"

"No place in the world, I take it," Judge Lindley wrote "are people so well fed as in the United States Nowhere else, I suppose, do food distributors accomplish efficient distribution at so low a margin of profit."

But, the court was constrained to hold in the end, they can't do that for us and, with rather plain indications that this hurt him more than it hurt them the judge took the culprits to the woodshed, which is a homely old temple in our mythology where boys are believed to have been hair-brushed for stealing apples. For the record, let it be shown that exhaustive research has verified no case in which any woodshed ever housed such morbid ceremonies, no case in which the hair-brush actually was the instrument of justice nor any authentic charge of stealing apples. Watermelons, yes, but not apples.

It was clever but stupid of the A & P to deceive citizens by masking its parentage of these propaganda fronts, such as the one called the Emergency Tax Council of New Jersey, which campaigned against special taxes on supermarkets, and, if my opinion is demanded, it was dishonest as well. The better way would have been to admit that A & P was backing and organizing this front and to put the proposition to the citizens on the basis that they and the company had a common interest. Consulting my own psychology, I think the people who joined the council would have been resentful had they found out that they and their honest enthusiasm had been used to promote the cause of an unseen principal even for their own incidental good Anyway it was a tricky scheme though common practice these days, which is the point of this essay, after all this

Here we have a court frowning on this sort of pressure in the case of a beneficent grocery company, but, in the index of the Dies committee, we have lists of hundreds of false front organizations many of them ephemeral which were set up with the stated purpose of fighting for truth justice freedom and other pearly monuments which have become grisly platitudes from their very own ill use We have not only councils but committees, congresses and institutes, forums leagues, foundations and schools, societies brotherhoods and guilds using every conceivable combination and variation of such bait as "human rights" "freedom" "liberties" and "defense" Most of these on the Dies committee lists are, or were political traps either organized by the Communists or at their suggestion by sneaks in more or less decent guise The purpose of most of them if not all was to wreak the wreck of that American economy of which Judge Lindley could write that it fed our people better than any other people on earth were fed

There are Americans now so skeptical and confused that they would not join a pants-pressing club or a league of nature lovers and it would leave me cold to be informed that the Audubon society was encountering resistance among a wary nation once noted for its joinery and proud of its lodge buttons. The world "veteran" in a new society of whilom warriors has become a ruddy larm to the cautious, thanks to the bolos who went marching forth beneath the starry flag and steered the parade to the senate chamber at Albany with Mike Quill, of the CIO, showing the way, although Mr Quill was otherwise employed, organizing strikes, while the soldiers were disputing issues with the Germans and the Japs

No court, no law, no bureau of the government deplores these fronts save that the Department of Justice bully-rag some which maintain a surly devotion to the U. S. constitution and thus invite suspicion of Hitlerian designs. Many are able to advertise that contributions to their funds are deductible from the donors' taxable income as gifts in the interest of education and/or charity. This means to George Spelvin, American, who will show you his worst side if you call him a "common man," that he is required to make up the loss of taxes to the national treasury which might have been paid by others who roguishly gave money to the striking auto workers last winter. The auto workers could have been at work, paying income taxes themselves and feeding their own families, but their union podrones kept them idle for 100 days and were unwilling or unable to pay them an adequate union dole Money spent for advertisements to solicit these gifts also was legitimate, deductible expense, but the purpose, or issue, of the strike will not be readily recognized as one in which the public as a whole had a profitable interest, as the A & P could argue in the case of the Jersey council.

I dare say that the Teamsters and the hardy bridge-players who sail the seas could have enjoyed the same privilege as the two Auto Workers during their long blockades of New York which made sugar a rarity and closed the A & P's evil depots of plenty for little A 'defense" council or a "workers' fund would have served the purpose, and most of the money could have been used for advertisements "educating" the public in terms of Russian ideology.

It comes now to this: A false front promoted by a taxpaying corporation to support a legitimate interest of citizens is sinful by law, but a thousand fakes operating against the peace and thrift of the nation, operating indeed to the hunger and want of the same people, are praiseworthy and entitled to special grace.

Church Unity Needed For Peace in World

St. Louis, Nov. 4—(AP) Asserting the atomic bomb posed the issue of "One World or No World", the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ (Methodist) Church, New York City told a Protestant Reformation Day rally yesterday that "all men of good will" must cooperate to prevent a third global war.

Tendencies toward another war must be checked now by "consecration to our historic faith and cooperation with all men of good will" said the chairman of the Inter-Faith Committee for Russian Relief.

"We should not expect governments to work together in good will unless we of the churches are even more willing to do so", said Dr. Sockman.

He declared "Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders should set one example to the world by getting together in conference and cooperation instead of resorting to controversy and conflict.

"Only a church united in spirit can have power with God and man in praying for a united world".

THE meeting took place in Mr. Godfrey's office late in the afternoon. Alexander Barr, the Bartletts' lawyer, and Octavia Bartlett arrived together, and Joel Dwight came a few minutes later.

Gayle was shocked when she saw Mrs. Bartlett. The warm color was gone from her cheeks, the arrogant sparkle from her eyes. She looked like a woman literally ravaged with grief.

"How do you do, Mrs Bartlett," Gayle said, preserving her poise with a great effort. "It was kind of you to come."

Mrs. Bartlett's head lifted, and for a moment her eyes glowed with their old fire. "You hardly left me any choice Gayle I was told that Bruce's good name was involved"

"Yes—his and mine"

She turned then, acknowledged Mr. Godfrey's introductions to the two men, and sat down in the chair Mr. Godfrey held for her Her knees were trembling.

"I asked you to come here," Mr. Godfrey said to his three guests, "at Mrs. Bruce Bartlett's suggestion. She feels that her situation has become intolerable. Will you explain, Gayle?"

Gayle took a deep breath, swallowed twice, and with an effort found her voice. "I do feel it's intolerable," she began. She turned to Dwight. "For example, you have been giving information about me to the newspapers without my consent. Surely that's not proper."

"Not under normal circumstances, Mrs. Bartlett," he said courteously. "But the circumstances have been very abnormal."

"I see." Gayle's courage was returning. She was beginning to feel anger, and the anger banished her fear and hesitancy.

"I see," she repeated. Then she turned to Mrs. Bartlett. "For the past year," she said, her voice cold with contempt, "you have had my every movement watched by a private detective"

DWIGHT looked surprised, and both Mrs. Bartlett and Alexander Barr looked startled. She moved to speak, but he hastened to take control of the situation.

"That is a grave accusation, Mrs. Bartlett," he said to Gayle.

Mr Godfrey stirred uneasily and spoke to Barr. "Mrs. Bartlett has always known about the detective," he said, 'and her evidence is perfectly sound I don't think we'll get anywhere arguing about him"

Barr bent his head in defeat "Very well, Godfrey Surely it was Mrs Bartlett's privilege to protect her grandson. She would have been remiss if she had made no effort to do so."

Gayle's eyes flashed. "She wasn't protecting Kent She was spying on me. Now I've had enough of it."

Suddenly she flamed with rage For many hours she had planned her attack, and she had promised herself to remain calm But in that instant all calmness fled and in one furious rush she said all she had to say. She stood up and faced Octavia Bartlett

"I'll have no more of it. Do you understand?"

No one had spoken to Octavia Bartlett in that tone within her memory. The old black fire flashed in her eyes, and her head came up in all her old arrogance.

"Indeed! You presume, Gayle."

"I do not presume. You have presumed—and you're not going to presume any more. I've had enough of it. I won't stand for any more. I know what you've been doing. You've been making a god out of Bart, and you're scared to death I'll spoil everything by talking. You're trying to keep me shut up." She whirled on Dwight. "You've kept the reporters away from me because you're afraid I'll tell them I was going to sue him for divorce. You're afraid I'll tell them I could prove he was unfaithful. I could—and I can. If you don't leave me alone, I will"

Then she moved to face Barr. "You had Barney spying on me to try to trap me. Mrs. Bartlett was fool enough to try to buy me off, and you were fool enough to think you could buy my silence with threats. You're all fools, all three of you. Didn't it ever enter your heads I could be generous? Haven't you sense enough to know I never wanted revenge? I never wanted anything but my freedom, and that's all I want now, and I'm going to have it—freedom from all of you. Do you understand?"

"I DON'T think, Mrs. Bartlett," Barr said to her, his voice dry almost to tonelessness "that melodrama will get us anywhere. You forget, I'm afraid, that your son is now the Bartlett heir"

"Kent is not the Bartlett heir," Gayle contradicted flatly. "That's one reason I'm here today. I'm going to see that he never gets a cent of Bartlett money—and if I ever marry again, he'll give up the Bartlett name. It's nothing I wear with any pride"

"Aren't you promising a good deal?" Barr's eyes smiled at her coldly.

"Not more than I can carry out. You forget, Mr Barr, that I can prove you paid Tom and Betty Kingston to get out of the state. You're surprised, aren't you? You didn't know I knew that, did you? I know that Betty Kingston is in New York right now. I know Holly Steele is, and I know she's living on Bartlett money I know she was with Bart as long as he was in this country. You made a mistake, Mr. Barr. You took it for granted I was a fool and full of vengeance. You were wrong both times. I thought you were always careful to be ethical."

"I always am ethical," he said staring angrily at her.

"Technically and deviously—but not actually; but even the great Alexander Barr makes mistakes—and you made one this time."

5. September, 1946

Hon. Sterling D. Schrock,
County Clerk,
Dixon, Illinois.
Dear Sterling:

Charles Bott, Thistle Commissioner for Dixon Township, has called upon me numerous times with regard to having something constructive done, through proper legislation, about the eradication of the various species of thisties to be found, not only in our county, but in the State of Illinois, as a whole.

I informed him that if the Board of Supervisors of Lee County, in their next meeting on September 10, would draw, and pass a resolution in this regard, I would be very happy to lend my support to this type of legislation, and if necessary, introduce the bill, with the assistance of Senator Collins.

I believe that if you are interested in this much needed improvement, and I know that the farmers throughout this district are, you can suggest to George Webber that this resolution be drawn up and adopted at your next meeting, and be sure that I receive a copy of it, then it will lend a great deal of weight to the bill in the coming session of the General Assembly.

Please let me know how you feel in this matter, as I know you have been contacted perhaps on numerous occasions by Mr. Bott.

Kindest regards and best wishes.
LYLE M. PRESCOTT

Heavy State Vote Seen as Campaign Drive Nears End

Predict More Than Half Illinois Voters Will Cast Ballots

Chicago, Nov. 4—(AP)—More than half the state's nearly 5,000,000 eligible voters are expected to decide tomorrow's unusually lively off-year general election contests in Illinois.

Republican leaders predicted a statewide victory to help the GOP attempt to gain control of congress, and Democrats declared they would roll up another large plurality in Cook county to assure success despite deficits in Republican-dominated downstate.

Generally cool and clear weather was predicted.

With good weather and with a state soldier bonus at stake, some party leaders predicted more than 2,800,000 of the estimated 4,943,251 registered voters would turn out.

Both Sides Confident

Republicans were confident they would gain three more congressional seats to increase their present 15-11 edge over Democrats in the state delegation, and GOP State Chairman Paul C. Rosenquist forecast a statewide Republican plurality of 325,000.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly says he expects a downstate GOP plurality of less than 200,000 and that the Cook county Democratic majority his party lieutenants estimate variously from 150,000 to 300,000, depending on the turnout, easily will overcome whatever lead Republicans bring to the Chicago area line.

Major partisan interest centered on the congressional contests, particularly the at-large race between Mrs. Emily Taft Douglas, Democratic incumbent, and William G. Stratton, former congressman-at-large and Navy lieutenant who in recent years has been the GOP'S state champion vote-getter.

Expect Stratton to Win

Republicans, anticipating their greatest growth in state strength since the advent of the new deal 15 years ago, expect Stratton will return to congress and take with him from two to four other Republicans to seats now held by Democrats.

Main GOP hopes are Calvin D. Johnson of Belleville to defeat Melvin Price, East St. Louis ex-GI, and Fred Busbey to win back the third district Chicago post he lost two years ago to Edward A. Kelly. Republicans also hope to unseat Democratic congressmen in the 1st, 2nd, 7th and 9th Chicago districts.

Democratic leaders, however, expect all their Chicago area congressmen will be re-elected, and that with the aid of split ballots and a stronger downstate organization, coupled with a heavy Chicago vote, they will gain three or four seats.

Labeled as the strongest downstate congressional nominees opposing Republican incumbents were Roscoe Bonjean of Springfield in the 21st district and Homer Kasserman of Newton in the 23rd. Both World war II veterans, they have campaigned vigorously with national party aid in efforts to defeat Republicans Evan Howell of Springfield and Charles W. Vursell of Salem.

Engle Opposes Nickell

On the outcome of the Douglas-Stratton race may hinge the contests for state treasurer and superintendent of public instruction.

Richard Yates Rowe of Jacksonville, former secretary of state by interim appointment, is the Republican nominee for treasurer against Democrat Sam Keys of Lincoln, 36 year old ex-Army captain.

C. H. Engle of Chicago is the Democratic challenger to Vernon L. Nickell, Champaign Republican seeking re-election as superintendent of public instruction.

Sharing major interest with the statewide contests were the Republican attempt to make a dent in Democratic control of Chicago and Cook county, and the soldier bonus issue.

Republicans, with an eye on the 1947 Chicago mayoralty fight and the big city voice in the 1948 election, have made a strong bid to reduce the perennial vote margin of the Cook county Democratic organization and to loosen its grip on local offices. They hope to diminish the prestige of Mayor Kelly, the state's Democratic national committeeman.

Kelly, Arvey Confident

Kelly, however, predicted victory with a 70 per cent voter turnout and Democratic County Chairman J. M. Arvey said his ticket would win intact by 160,000 on an 80 per cent turnout.

The $385,000,000 bond issue proposed by the legislature to finance lump cash bonuses averaging $400 each of 916,000 state veterans of the recent war has been a widely debated issue in the last few weeks of the campaign.

Both major parties and some veterans' organizations have plumped for the bonus plan. Some taxpayer, church, veterans and independent groups have sharply criticized or flatly opposed it.

The bonus plan, to be adopted, requires a favorable vote equal to or in excess of the majority of votes cast for members of the general assembly. Usually only about 90 to 95 per cent of voters cast ballots marked for assembly candidates.

Vote on "Gateway" Change

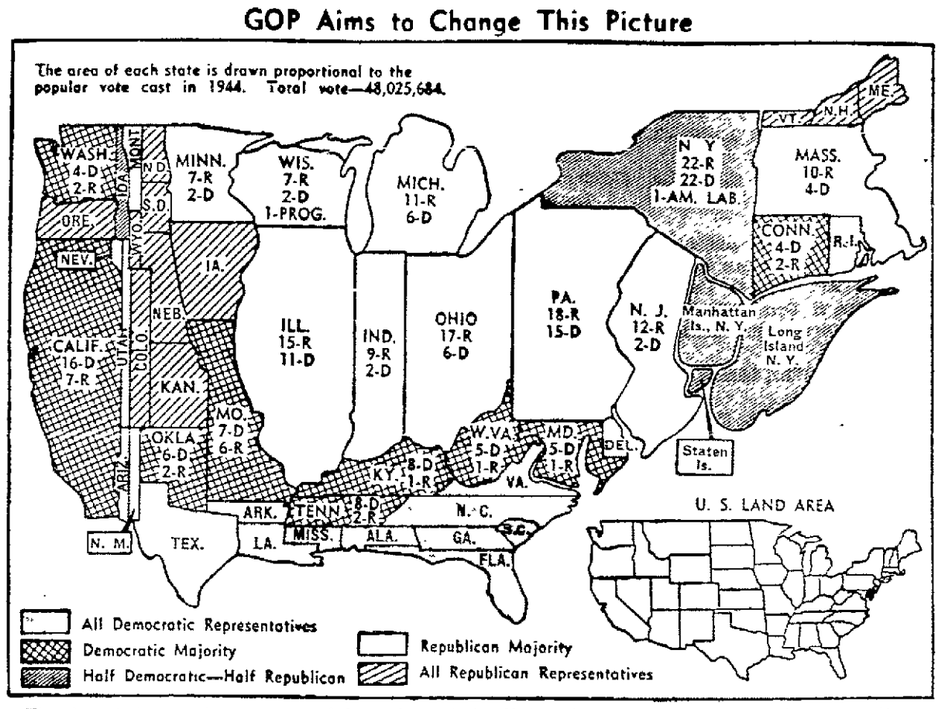

In another statewide referendum, voters will decide whether to permit easier amendment of the 1870 state constitution. The plan, known as the "Gateway" amendment because it would open the way to make for easier change of the constitution, has failed to win approval four times in the last 54 years, chiefly because adoption requires a majority of all votes cast in the election.

The Gateway plan would abolish this requirement, permit the legislature to offer amendments to three instead of one article of the constitution at the same election, and would require a majority of two-thirds of those voting on the proposition to gain referendum adoption. Under the present requirement of all votes cast in the election, failure to vote on the Gateway plan is in effect a vote against it.

Both major parties and some labor, farm and independent voter groups have endorsed the Gateway proposal. There has been little public opposition to it.

Three University of Illinois trustees also will be elected from the state at large. In the 51 senatorial districts, 27 state senators and all 153 members of the house of the general assembly convening in January will be named. Counties will elect judges, clerks, sheriffs, treasurers and other officers, and some will have local referendum questions to be decided.

F. F. A. Sponsors Hay Ride

The Future Farmers of America of Oregon Community high school undertook a rather large job on Hallowe'en. They advertised and sold tickets for a hayride and pig barbecue for about two weeks in advance, and did a good job of promoting. One hundred and fifty students bought tickets and announced that by so doing that they were anxious to partake. A 140-lb pig was purchased from Henry Johnson, father of the president of the F. F. A. club, and he also butchered it to help the boys. Clayton Hollewell helped James Powers, ag. teacher, in getting the pig ready for the oven. Rex Walters turned on the heat in the big bakery oven and did a swell job. Glenn Huffman loaded the delicious pig in the old ice truck, piled in eight cases of pop and 26 dozen buns and everyone took off from the high school at 6:30. Six hay wagons and three tractors were necessary to haul the 150 odd students and 10 teachers and several guests. Forrest Gillespie, Harlow Hills, and George LeFevre, Sr., dads of F.F.A. boys, furnished the tractors for the big occasion. After about an hour of riding the cavalcade arrived at the Fred Stenzel farm where a large brush pile had been fixed ready for a match to touch it off. The big blaze warmed the chilled students and hot fresh pork sandwiches and pop aided in putting all present in good spirits. Plenty of noise was made, and many cheers went up, but with no house closer than a mile, no one was annoyed.

The return trip was made so that they arrived back at the high school by 10:30, reporting a swell time. The F.F.A. boys and Mr. Powers wish to thank all the people who helped to put this on, and report that although the profits were small, the success was great.

Perjury Charges Faces 2 Witnesses in Sedition Trials

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—(AP)—U. S. Dist. Atty. Edward M. Curran said Saturday perjury indictments will be sought against two grand jury witnesses in Washington's mass sedition case.

Curran declined to name the witnesses but said they are "in this country." He declared the war department is helping to expedite the return from Germany of two other persons whom he described as "witnesses to the alleged perjury."

The grand jury indicted 30 persons in January, 1944, on charges of conspiring to undermine the morale of the military services and to help set up a nazi form of government in this country. The number of defendants was reduced to 26 with the death of one and the granting of severances to three others.

Ends in a Mistrial

A mistrial was declared in December, 1944, after seven months of tumultuous court room proceedings, as a result of the death of the presiding judge.

The special prosecutor, O. John Rogge, was dismissed from the justice department last week, because, Atty. Gen. Clark said, he had divulged confidential information bearing on the case in a public speech.

Evidence for Jury

In disclosing the prospective perjury action, Curran told a reporter:

"I have appointed Charles B. Murray, one of our assistants, to present to the grand jury evidence which might result in the indictment for perjury of two persons in this country, who testified before the grand jury in the sedition case.

"Presentation must await the arrival of two witnesses to the alleged perjury now in Germany. One, I understand, is a former attache of the German embassy. They may be returned next week. I don't know."

Struggles Renewed As Ministers Open Treaty Conference

Fireworks Certain Over Five Treaties as Big Four Start Talks

The big four foreign ministers meet in New York today and here's why:

1. They start final work on peace treaties for Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

2. They hope to finish up those five treaties and reach agreement on them by Nov. 20. They've been working on them a year.

3. After Nov. 20 they expect to start work on a peace treaty for Germany. With the other five out of the way, they can do that

4. This meeting of the foreign ministers is separate from the meeting of the 51 United Nations in New York. The UN has other business.

5. There'll be fireworks among the ministers on the five treaties between now and Nov. 20.

Trouble Over Germany

6. And when they start work on the German treaty after Nov. 20 there'll be still more fireworks.

The four foreign ministers—meeting in New York at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel—are:

United States — Secretary of State Byrnes; Britain—Foreign Minister Bevin; Russia—Foreign Minister Molotov; France—Deputy Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

(France's Premier Bidault, who also is foreign minister, will come here and take over for his country after the French elections next Sunday).

Here's how the whole thing started:

Met Four Times

President Truman, Russia's Prime Minister Stalin and Britain's Prime Minister Atlee met in Potsdam, Germany, in the summer of 1945.

Knowing that working out peace treaties was a long and tough job, they agred to let their foreign ministers do it.

Starting in September, 1945, and winding up in July, 1946, the foreign ministers met four times—in London, Moscow and Paris.

Helped by their large staffs who had to clear up immense details, the foreign ministers argued and struggled to reach some agreements.

They finally got together five agreements, or treaties, in a general kind of way.

Then they called a conference of 21 nations—including the United States, Britain, Russia, France—which had some interest in these treaties.

This conference of 21 nations—a peace conference—opened in Paris in July and ended Oct. 15.

Powers Take Sides

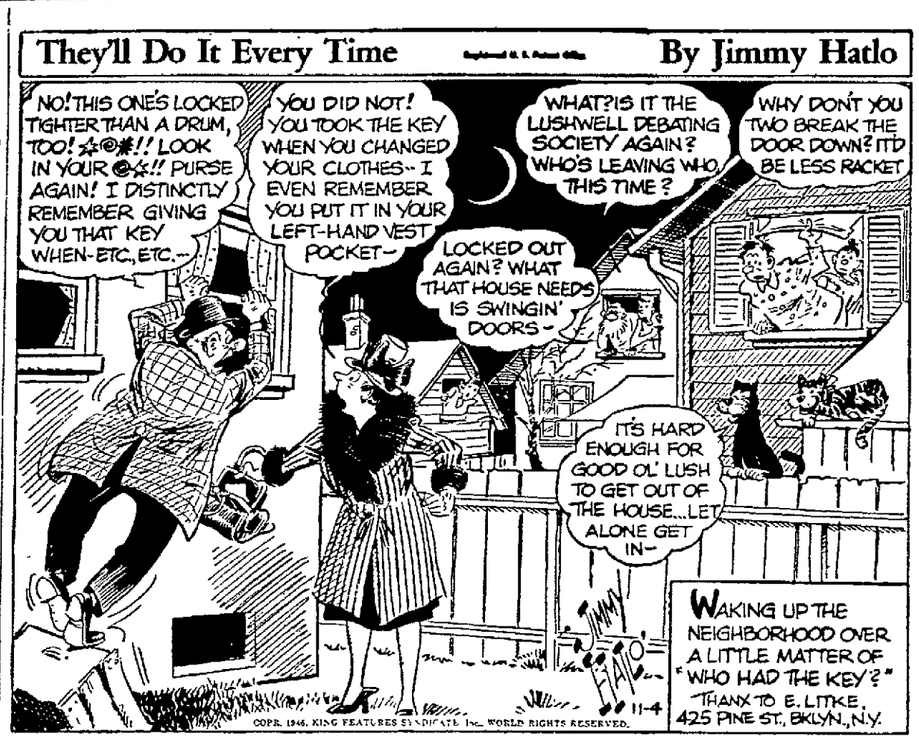

There was a great deal of struggle at the conference between Russia and its friends, like Yugoslavia, on one side and the U. S. and Britain and their friends on the other.

The peace conference had no power to do anything final about the treaties. All it could really do, by voting, was to suggest changes in the treaties which the foreign ministers laid before it in July.

Then these treaties with the changes—or, rather, the recommendations of the peace conference—went back to the foreign ministers. Now they've taken those treaties to New York to sweat over them some more.

There the foreign ministers will do the final work and reach the final agreements.

The peace conference had been only a way of straightening out some more of the treaty kinks before the ministers made final decisions.

Day By Day On the Air

by

C. E. BUTTERFIELD

(Central Standard Time)

New York—(AP)—The battle over color television seems to be waxing rather than waning. It's all about how soon this development is to be ready for the public. Also the system to be used.

CBS, advocate of Dr. Peter C. Goldmark's mechanical color reproducer, had pleaded: "Let's go; we're all set". RCA, developer of the first practical all-electronic system, countered: "Hold your horses; it'll take nearly five years more to get ready".

In addition, CBS had urged immediate introduction of color on new frequencies, contending present day black and white on different channels would soon be obsolete and that sets sold now would become so much useless quipment.

RCA came back by citing how its new method is being designed for integration into the black and white system so that one will function with the other and prevent receiver obsolesence. Thus, it saw no reason why black and white should not be pushed to its ultimate pending public arrival of color.
